LALLEMAND ANNOUNCES COMMITMENT TO UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

(Milwaukee, WI) – Lallemand announces a major financial commitment over a period of five years to the University of Delaware. The funds will be used toward construction costs for a new milking parlor at the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. The new state-of-the-art facility will provide education, training and other outstanding opportunities for students.

Lallemand Animal Nutrition commits approximately 10% of its annual turnover to Research and Development through University partners, such as the University of Delaware. “The University of Delaware’s long time contribution to understanding the science of direct fed microbials and silage inoculants led us, as a company, to gladly support this added capability in this area,” said Vince Myerly, Commercial Director.

Lallemand, Inc. is a privately held Canadian company specialized in yeast, bacteria, and yeast derivatives for animal nutrition, baking, winemaking, and human nutrition industries. Lallemand is the only major supplier of yeast and bacteria that is a primary producer of both.
